Biographical Sketch

Irene Mary Spry (née Biss), economist and historian, was born 28 August 1907 in Standerton, the Transvaal, South Africa, the daughter of Evan E. Biss and Amelia Bagshaw Johnstone. She married Graham Spry (1900-1983) in 1938 and they had three children, Robin, Richard and Elizabeth (Lib).

Irene Spry's father was a senior colonial official in the field of education whose career took him from Africa to India and back to Africa again. On the outbreak of war in 1914, Irene and her sister Anne and brother Evan went to live with their aunt Mary Johnstone in Surrey, England. She received her early education in England, attending the Bournemouth High School for Girls. In 1923 she enrolled at the London School of Economics but after one year, however, transferred to Girton College at the University of Cambridge to read economics. She received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Cambridge in 1928 and went to Pennsylvania to study for her Masters in Social Research with Professor Susan M. Kingsbury at Bryn Mawr College. Her major research project there was a report on "Married Women in Industry without Children". After graduation in 1929, she weighed offers from different universities but went to the University of Toronto as a lecturer in the Department of Political Economy.

During her time in Toronto (1929-1938) Irene began to write and research in the field of economics and work closely with the department's rising star, Harold Adams Innis. She also became in the early 1930s one of the founding members of the League for Social Reconstruction (LSR), displaying the social awareness and labour sympathies that she had inherited from her father and developed in the Cambridge Labour Club. She wrote a pamphlet, The Industrial Revolution in Canada, for the Social Service Council in 1933 and wrote parts of two chapters of the LSR's Social Planning for Canada (Toronto, 1935). She was promoted to Assistant Professor in 1934 and in that year enrolled as a PhD student with Innis. Her thesis topic was water power in Canada and her field research took her on extensive summer trips to northern Ontario, western Canada, and the Northwest Territories. Innis also encouraged her to write a volume on hydroelectric power in Canada for the Canadian-American relations series funded by the Carnegie Corporation. She completed neither the volume nor the thesis, however. Instead, she married Graham Spry in 1938 whom she had met through the LSR. In accordance with the policies of the university, she had to resign her teaching position on marriage.

Graham and Irene Spry moved to England in 1938 where he went to work for an oil company and later for Sir Stafford Cripps. Irene returned to Canada on the outbreak of war in 1939 with their first child, Robin. She worked for the YWCA as an economic advisor for a year before joining the Wartime Prices and Trade Board as an economist (later the Commodity Prices Stabilization Board). After the war, Graham took up an appointment as Agent-General for the government of Saskatchewan in London, and Irene joined him there, establishing Saskatchewan House. During the 1950s, Irene became active in the international women's movement serving as the representative of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada (FWIC) to the Associated Country Women of the World (ACWW) from 1954 to 1967. In this capacity, she was chair of the executive committee and general purposes committee from 1959 to 1965, and Deputy World President of the ACWW from 1968 to 1974. She travelled widely in the 1960s and 1970s on behalf of the ACWW visiting many of the sixty-five countries with member societies and meeting rural women and homemakers throughout the world. Through this activity, she forged a worldwide network of friends and associates.

Irene returned to the pursuit of scholarly research and writing in the late 1950s. In 1957, the government of Saskatchewan asked her to locate documents relating to John Palliser's exploration of western Canada to commemorate its centennial. She uncovered documents in archives, libraries and private homes throughout the British Isles and developed a lifelong interest in Palliser and western Canadian history that produced several books and scores of articles in academic and popular publications. Her research took her to Canada, the United States and even New Zealand in an exhaustive search for Palliser manuscripts. Her first book, The Palliser Expedition (Toronto: Macmillan, 1963, reprinted in 1973 and 1995), told the story of the expedition in a narrative style. As its name suggests, The Papers of the Palliser Expedition (Toronto: Champlain Society, 1968), was a collection of documents relating to the expedition. She also edited the memoirs of Peter Erasmus, a Métis guide with Palliser for publication in Buffalo Days and Nights (Calgary: Glenbow-Alberta Institute, 1976).

Graham retired in 1967 and they returned to Canada where Irene began her second academic career as a Visiting Professor at the University of Saskatchewan. They moved to Ottawa the next year and she joined the staff of the University of Ottawa as a Professor of Economics. After her "retirement" in 1973, she continued to teach part-time until early 1980s as Professor Emeritus. She served on the university senate during 1970-1971 and on its Board of Governors from 1973 to 1976. During her University of Ottawa years she continued to pursue her twin research interests of economics and history, often applying an inter-disciplinary approach. She co-edited Natural Resource Development in Canada: A Multi-disciplinary Seminar (Ottawa: University of Ottawa Press, 1973) with Philippe Crabbé and wrote and published extensively on economic issues such as rent and royalties, non-renewable resources, demand theory, leisure and conservation. Her historical research evolved outward from Palliser to embrace the economic development of the Prairie provinces and more specifically the transition from a nomadic to a settled agricultural economy in the nineteenth century.

In this respect, she became a central figure in the group of historians working in the emerging field of western Canadian history in the 1970s. Irene did not slow down after Graham's death in 1983, continuing to write articles for journals and biographies for the Dictionary of Canadian Biography. She co-authored The Records of the Department of the Interior (Regina: Canadian Plains Research Centre, 1993) with Bennett McCardle, essentially a descriptive catalogue of archival sources. The University of Alberta Press accepted her last book, From the Hunt to the Homestead, on which she had worked since 1968, shortly before her death in 1998. It has still not appeared in print.

Irene Spry won numerous honours and awards during her lifetime. She received honorary doctorates from the University of Toronto in 1971 and the University of Ottawa in 1985. She was awarded the Royal Society of Arts Silver Medal in 1964 and made a Member of Honour of the ACWW in 1985. The Seniors' Group of the University of Regina conferred upon her its Distinguished Canadian Citizen Award in 1987 and she received the Council of Canadians Award in 1991. She was made an Officer of the Order of Canada in 1993. Karen Shopsowitz produced a film about her life, "Wit and Wisdom: Irene Mary Spry" in 1995. She was also honoured with a festschrift in 1985, Explorations in Canadian Economic History: Essays in Honour of Irene M. Spry and a symposium, published as Social Democracy in Europe: A Model for Canada?, in 1997. She died 16 December 1998 in Ottawa.

Scope and Content

The fonds consists of the personal papers, photographs, maps and sound recordings of Irene Spry, documenting her education and upbringing; professional career as an economist and historian at the universities of Toronto and Ottawa; scholarly research and publications in the field of economics and history, in particular economic history and theory, and the exploration, economic development, and settlement of western Canada; social activism and role in the international women's movement through the Associated Country Women of the World and other organizations; relationship with her husband Graham Spry and her family; and other facets of her personal life and research interests.

Series Descriptions:

Personal and Family Material (2.12 m, 1895-1998) Vols. 12-23, 66-67

This series includes Irene Spry's personal papers, memorabilia, financial files, correspondence from family members, and documents relating to Graham Spry. The latter material contains offprints of his writings that are not in his own fonds, annotated books and articles, files pertaining to the Graham Spry memorial lecture and fund for public broadcasting, and correspondence and draft chapters for his collected letters, Passion and Conviction (Regina: Canadian Plains Research Centre, 1992), edited by Rose Potvin. The family correspondence contains large runs of letters from Irene's father, mother, sister Anne and daughter Lib, among others. Her father's letters from Kenya, 1927-1946, contain detailed discussions of local conditions and political analysis. Another file holds letters and post cards from Graham to Irene or their children written during times when they were apart. In addition, the series includes material relating to her early education, honours and awards, property and real estate, daily planners and calendars, and income tax returns.

Correspondence (93 cm, 1915-1998) Vols. 11, 23-27

The series comprises nominal correspondence, chronological correspondence, birthday cards and Christmas cards. The subject matter ranges from the personal to the professional and political, reflecting the vast range of Irene Spry's interests and friendships. There are nominal files for John Black, Muriel Bradbrook, Nora Coe, Luella Bruce Creighton, Alice Crosthwaite, Herbert Lionel Elvin, Frannie Hall, Barbara Johnstone, Barbara Jones, Stuart C. Legge, L.W. Lockhart, Percy C. Lyon, Paddy Mann, E. R. Roux, Edward Rugumayo, Susan Buchan, Lady Tweedsmuir, Betty Underhill, Catharine Whyte, and Monica Hunter Wilson. The chronological correspondence is weighted heavily to the years 1928 and 1929 (when she was at Bryn Mawr College) and the years from the 1960s to the 1990s. Some correspondents found in these files include: Eileen Power, Marjorie Tappan Holland, George W. Cadbury, Vincent Bladen, Frank Underhill, Alexander Brady, Buffy Sainte-Marie, Margaret Laurence, Mabel Timlin, John Hemming, Walter Gordon, Courtney Bond, Lovat Dickson, Anne Bohm, Tommy Douglas, Pauline Jewett, Nancy Adams, Cynthia Flood, Mary R. Jackman, Jonathan Ostry, Celia Franca, King Gordon, Marian Scott, Stanley Knowles, Bill Roberts, Nancy Ruth, and Louise Comfort.

Early Academic Work (26 cm, 1923-1940) Vols. 27-28, 67

This series contains papers relating to Irene Spry's studies at Cambridge and Bryn Mawr College, and her teaching career at the University of Toronto. The Cambridge files show her involvement in the labour club and debating society and efforts to win a scholarship for graduate work, including letters of reference from Marjorie Tappan. The Bryn Mawr material reveals the practical nature of her courses in industrial relations and social research. Files for her major research project on "Married Women in Industry" contain evidence of early use of quantitative research methodology through the analysis of census data, questionnaires for factory managers, and interviews with working women. They include correspondence with Prof. Susan Kingsbury, research material, tables, and manuscripts of this unpublished study. The University of Toronto files include material relating to her appointment as Lecturer, promotion to Assistant Professor, and resignation in 1938, and reveal that Prof. E. J. Urwick was anxious to recruit her for his staff. In addition, there is correspondence and notes from her colleagues and material on courses in economics and history in the 1930s.

Research and Scholarship (1.69 m, 1925-1997) Vols. 28-36, 67-68

This series consists of files relating to Irene Spry's research and scholarship (generally outside of her publications) and is organized into six blocks: hydro-electric power research files, Harold Adams Innis material, research correspondence, files on organizations that she belonged to or supported, book reviews and scholarly criticism, and annotated books. The hydro material includes draft chapters of her uncompleted PhD thesis on water power in Canada, research material, travel diaries for her field research in northern Ontario, and correspondence relating to her field research in the Northwest Territories. The latter files show some of the difficulties faced by women doing research in the academic world. The research correspondence holds economic correspondence with George Cadbury, O. J. Firestone, John Crow, Tillo Kuhn and Joan Robinson; fur trade history correspondence with A. J. Ray, Sylvia Van Kirk and Jennifer Brown; and institutional correspondence with various archives, libraries and museums.

The Harold Innis material documents her relationship with this noted scholar and her role later in life as an interpreter of his work. There are letters from Innis and his wife, Mary Quayle Innis, and from Donald Creighton regarding his biography of Innis. In addition, it includes offprints of his work inscribed to Irene Spry, her papers and articles about him, and files pertaining to the Harold Innis Foundation. The organizations block holds files for the Canadian Broadcasting League, Champlain Society, Committee for an Independent Canada, Friends of the London School of Economics, Institute for Research on Environment and Economy, the Royal Geographical Society, and other academic associations or activist groups. In addition, the series contains files for her book reviews for the American Economic Review, Journal of Political Economy, The Economist, and the Canadian Journal of Political Science, from the 1930s to the 1960s, and files of her reviews of books relating to western Canadian and fur trade history from the 1970s and 1980s. The final block of records consists of books relating to economics or Canadian history containing extensive annotations by Irene Spry.

Publications - General series (2.46 m, 1933-1997) Vols. 36-49

This series consists of records relating to Irene Spry's scholarly and popular publications, including books (except for the two John Palliser volumes which are arranged in the following series), articles, conference papers, lectures, and encyclopedia entries. The files hold manuscripts, drafts, research and editorial correspondence, criticism, reader mail, offprints, book reviews, conference material, and other documents. Her publishing career spanned seven decades, from the early 1930s to the mid-1990s. As a result, the series is an excellent prism through which to view changing developments in the social sciences and Canadian historiography. The files for her articles and papers display the wide range of her research interests which embraced economic theory, hydro-electric development, conservation of natural resources, the fur trade, exploration and settlement of western Canada, and aboriginal-European relations, to name a few areas in which she published. The series holds more extensive documentation for her books Natural Resource Development in Canada: A Multi-Disciplinary Seminar (Ottawa: University of Ottawa Press, 1973), Buffalo Days and Nights (Calgary: Glenbow-Alberta Institute, 1976), The Records of the Department of the Interior (Regina: Canadian Plains Research Centre, 1993), and From the Hunt to the Homestead which was accepted for publication by the University of Alberta Press in 1998. It also includes a sound recording of her speaking about Canadian culture.

Publications - John Palliser Expedition Books (1.47 m, 1795-1998) Vols. 49-56, 67

This series consists of material relating to Irene Spry's two major books on the John Palliser expedition which explored western Canada between 1857 and 1860, The Palliser Expedition (Toronto: Macmillan, 1963) and The Papers of the Palliser Expedition (Toronto: Champlain Society, 1968). It also includes files relating to her general Palliser research from the late 1950s to the 1980s. For The Palliser Expedition, there is editorial correspondence with John Gray and Lovat Dickson of Macmillan Company, files on maps and illustrations, reader mail and comments, book reviews, documents relating to the 1995 reprint by Fifth House Publishing, and annotated copies of the book. The Palliser Papers material includes drafts and manuscripts, editorial correspondence with Morris Zaslow and W. Kaye Lamb of the Champlain Society, and reviews and comments.

The general files document her research methodology and exhaustive search for primary sources in Great Britain, Ireland, North America and around the world. The "sources" files are organized nominally by correspondent; the "dramatis personae" files are organized nominally by the key players in the Palliser story; and the "archives and libraries" are organized by institution. Some other blocks of records include places, friends and relatives, chronology, and assessment of Palliser's report. More specifically, these research files hold detailed correspondence with archives and other institutions holding Palliser papers and with the descendants of expedition members and others involved in an effort to uncover privately-held historical documents. As a result, the series contains some original documents from the Palliser period and photocopies of other documents still in private hands. For example, she obtained from descendants material belonging to John Palliser's grandfather, dating from 1795 to 1822, including a plan of the deer park at Derryluskan House, Ireland, and also acquired photocopies of the diary of the artist Mary Severn from the 1840s and 1850s.

Trip Binders (40 cm, 1958-1994) Vols. 57-58

The series comprises the trip binders prepared by Irene Spry for most of her major trips between 1960 and the early 1990s. Her travels often combined archival research with work for the Associated Country Women of the World and personal visits. The binders contain detailed itineraries, maps, travel brochures, local souvenirs, research notes, photographs, correspondence relating to ACWW meetings and project sites, research, accommodations and travel arrangements. The lengthy world trips of 1962 and 1974 for the ACWW are particularly well documented and offer glimpses of conditions in the third world. The earlier trip took her to Canada, Australia, Asia and Europe for five months on ACWW business and Palliser research. The later trip, as Deputy World President of the ACWW, covered Romania, India, Sri Lanka, Australia and Hong Kong. Many of the research trips took her to the archives and museums of western Canada. She also went to Norway and Denmark in 1971 to trace Palliser descendants and examine documents still in private hands.

Associated Country Women of the World (1.66 m, 1954-1998) Vols. 1-6, 59-61, 66

This series consists of documents relating to Irene Spry's involvement with the Associated Country Women of the World. She played a leading role from the 1950s to the 1980s in this international women's organization representing rural women and their families. The series comprises blocks of files for the triennial conferences, council meetings, correspondence, subject files, and related organizations. There are minutes, reports, agendas, and correspondence for the triennial conferences from 1959 to 1995, and council meetings from 1963 to 1985. For example, the records for the 1983 triennial conference in Vancouver hold detailed information on this event and the pre-conference workshop in Olds, Alberta that she led for women from other countries of the western hemisphere concerning issues like nutrition, agriculture and personal development. Subsequent correspondence with these women provides evidence of the conditions of rural women in the developing world. The correspondence and subject files include letters from individuals and organizations and document a variety of community development projects from around the world. Correspondence with Aroti Dutt, a well-known women's activist from India, reflects on her relief efforts and the future direction of the ACWW amidst constitutional changes. There are also letters from A. Wahabuddin Ahmed on the 1991 assassination of Rajiv Gandhi and from Alberta senator and activist Martha P. Bielish. Finally, the affiliated organizations material includes the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, International Secretariat for Volunteer Service, All Pakistan Women's Association, Sarawak Federation of Women's Institutes, Federation of Africa Women's Clubs, Saroj Nalini Dutt Memorial Association and the Women's Corona Society.

Second Academic Career (78 cm, 1964-1996) Vols. 61-66

The Second Academic Career series documents Irene Spry's long association with the University of Ottawa as a Professor and Professor Emeritus, which began in 1968. Correspondence files cover her appointment, the workings of the Department of Economics, and her terms on the Board of Governors and University Senate. Files relating to her honorary doctorates from the University of Toronto (1971) and University of Ottawa (1985) reveal the growing recognition of her achievements and include letters of congratulations from notable figures like Tommy Douglas, Vincent Bladen, and E. P. Neufeld, among others. The series also holds course outlines, reading lists, exams and student evaluations of her teaching for her courses on Canadian Economic History, the Principles of Economics, Natural Resources and the Economics of Leisure. In relation to scholarship, there is material on peer review, assessments of research proposals for funding agencies, letters of recommendation and evaluations of student theses. There is also documentation on her work with the Northern Research Group and the Advisory Council on Research of the Canadian Transport Commission.

Subject files (80 cm, 1928-1991) Vols. 7-10

The series consists of general subject files arranged alphabetically and reflecting the wide range of interests of Irene Spry. Some of the files hold material on GAMMA (McGill group for future studies), book reviews, Girton College, hydro-electric power and development, Harold A. Innis, the Palliser expedition, University of Ottawa, University of Toronto, University of Saskatchewan, articles and conferences. There is considerable overlap between this series and most of the other series due to the acquisition and arrangement history of the fonds.
