The Spokane Region Long Term Recovery Group (SRLTRG) is a 501c3 non-profit that was organized in the wake of the August 2023 Gray Road and Oregon Road wildfires in Spokane County.

It was created to coordinate recovery services and resources for individuals, families, businesses, and communities that were adversely impacted. Its focus is on addressing emergency, short-term needs and managing resources so they will be available for long-term rebuilding and recovery.

If you have been impacted by the August 1, 2026 Spokane Complex Fire (Old Trails, Autumn Lane, and Fairview Fires), the Spokane Region Long Term Recovery Group is organizing resources and will update this website soon.

This supplement is a response to emergent needs. It honors those who serve on the frontlines and those helping people in efforts of rebuilding homes and transforming lives.

The first part of this directory offers a step-by-step process for people affected by wildfires.

The second section lists resources in the Spokane region.

Directory users can begin by noting their needs and reviewing listings of government agencies, community efforts, disaster response programs and faith communities. Any listing of contractors or corporate entities is to exemplify skills or trades needed to inform research for making decisions. The listings are to inform not to recommend or advise, not knowing how granting agencies will allocate funds or recommending services of any particular group.

Because this guide is independent from any government entity, it offers information on faith-based services that are often present both on the frontlines and through long-term recovery.

The road to recovery can be long. For example, faith groups working in partnership after the Carlton fire in Okanogan County in 2014, recently completed rebuilding their 49th and last house five years after the fire.

The following list offers a step-by-step process for recovery from a wildfire to prevention, from emergency and firefighting response, to evacuation to a disaster shelter and then recovery after emergency services and utilities have determined it is safe to return.

Compiling data from the Emergency Response Team (ERT), from the Disaster Assistance Center (DAC), and the local and regional faith communities, this directory offers information for short-term relief and long-term recovery as a guide through trauma, loss and healing.

This directory is a service in print and online from The Fig Tree's annual Resource Directory, the comprehensive and inclusive guide resources for the Inland Northwest.

POB 2347, Olympia 98507
wsp.wa.gov/crime/mpu.htm
Report a missing child and receive assistance in locating a child. Local law enforcement must be notified first before involving MUPU.

☐ 2) Start looking for housing by contacting family and friends, or finding transitional housing options.

☐ 3) Use notebooks and folders to record insurance information calls, mileage, housing searches, phone numbers and email address of friends neighbors, government agencies, insurance. Back up information on a smart phone with photos, screen shots, notes and disaster or clean-up related apps.

☐ 4) Contact doctors and insurance agents to replace medications and medical devices: Most health plans include free 'emergency' replacement of prescriptions after a disaster, but not all employees know this. Check pharmacy or see some recommendations in Health: Medical and Pharmacies. Red Cross Shelter can help replace prescriptions, medical devices & equipment, glasses, dentures or treatment of illness or injury.

☐ 8) Regardless of insurance status, register with FEMA or Red Cross immediately at shelter, DAC or ERT, or at subsequent Red Cross Financial Assistance Centers. Under FEMA, mark the first box or select from the other options.

Do not register for any official or unofficial registration without being informed of your right to privacy and consent. Ask questions as to who has access, who owns the data and if it is bought sold or traded, and who has data security requirements based on WA state law on data security. Many platforms official from state, federal or private can offer platforms or case management which is in secure often with AI.

☐ 9) Replace smartphone, laptop or other web device as necessary, noting availability, hours and locations of drop-in centers for recharging. Access to streaming and disasters in geographically isolated or remote areas may result in some access and limitations to searches online.

☐ 10) Create a new email account just for post fire inquiries and communications.
For example: [Spokanefire\[insert name or initials\]@gmail.com](mailto:Spokanefire[insert name or initials]@gmail.com). That way fire-related emails are not lost in a maze of personal or business emails.

Email:

Password:

☐ 11) Consider opening a new credit card with points or miles, because there will be many expenses in a short period, depending on needs and support from family, friends, community or faith-community. There will be upfront expenses with loss of IDs, which may also get waived or reimbursed, or also expenses related to testing, clean-up and re-forestation. Consider all financial assistance programs available.

☐ 12) Notify non-fire-survivor friends and family that you are 'safe' on facebook or an app for family and friends. If friends and family may think you are missing, call

Crime Check 456-2233

☐ 13) Parents need to keep schools notified of contact info and living location.

They can create some normalcy with new toys, books and foods. Consider counseling for children and teens. See listings of School Districts under Children and Families.

Tips for first weeks after home loss or partial loss:

1) Follow the clean-up process once arrangements are made with insurance and photos. Make sure that no 'helpful' neighbor cleans up for you.

2) Check on assistance programs and replace any damaged or destroyed personal ID

3) Review housing situation: Check online to confirm registration with FEMA, State Emergency Management and Red Cross. Visit a Wrap-around Center like DAC or ERT, Red Cross Financial Assistance Center location.

4) Gather resources about community responses or services like this supplement or the full Resource Directory in print or online.

This supplement offers a selection of online and print guides at the start of each section and subsection.

Go to thefigtree.org and click 'Directory.' Scroll to 'Community Resources' which opens a list of services. Select 'Human Resources,' which includes 'Multiservice Agencies and Emergencies.'

Next steps:

• Ask family or friends to help with notifications:

Cancel electric, gas/propane, water, phone, cable, pest control, gardener, pool sweep, landlord and other services.

Forward any bills to PO Box or other mailing address.

• Cancel or change newspaper delivery.

• Check with local post office for mail and packages.

• Notify employer, family, friends, school of new contact information.

Tip: Reach out to current employer HR Department to notify when you applied and provided copies of documents. Those records still on file, possibly with school or work study. This may include copies of Social Security cards, birth certificates or passports.

5) To receive ballot in time for election, change voter registration mailing address with the Spokane County Elections

1033 W Gardner, 99260 477-2320
Check voter registration dates and deadlines by calling or checking online. Note ballot box at Indian Trail Library is closed.

With a Washington State driver's license or identification card, update address online. Login to VoteWA with your name and birthdate at voter.votewa.gov/WhereToVote.aspx To update by mail, print, fill out and mail form at sos.wa.gov/elections/voters/voter-registration/print-voter-registration-form

Or pick up form in person at the Spokane County Elections Office.

• To stay in touch with family and friends, join social media, groups for the the uninsured, fire-related news or support, rebuilding info, city and county recovery info, and other public service announcements such as on Facebook.com: Neighbors, new neighborhood or community Neighborhood Watch, Neighbors Helping Neighbors and also stay updated with local alerts and notices in media.

• Build a network so family, friends and community can help advocate on your behalf. Share differences and commonalities of experience to find strength.

Who can you rely on in your immediate family or household?

Who can you rely on extended family, add their contact?

Who is the closest friend you rely on to contact?

Who is a trusted counselor, community member/leader or spiritual advisor?

• Get involved in the community or in the neighborhood with former neighbors, create private Facebook group or other Google group to stay informed, connected and share essential recovery information. Sometimes a 'standing' neighbor can set up and run an email group chain. Attend town hall meeting for recovery information.

• Let others do things for you: run errands to the store, buy new clothes or comfort foods, help with post-fire chores, be open to being invited over for dinner, help secure personal property, pick up kids from school.

Partnering with the American Red Cross, likely transferred from Northwoods Middle School to provide temporary lodging for approximately 60 wildfire response volunteers who are serving individuals and families affected by the ongoing wildfires.

To accommodate this effort, all classes & activities in studio and gymnasium at the North Y will be canceled until further notice. Anticipate this arrangement to last two to three weeks and will continue to share updates as plans evolve. The rest of the North Y facility will remain open, including the Wellness Floor, aquatics and other member amenities. The North Y Summer Day Camp will also continue operating in the gymnasium, providing a safe and stable environment for children during this challenging time.

Watch for updates as long-term recovery efforts begin, such as connecting faith and nonprofits with the Washington Volunteer Organizations Active in Disasters.
