¹⁴ Format of 1987 - 1991:

Preliminary round = Each archer shot a FITA round, consisting of 144 arrows split evenly between the distances of 90 m, 70 m, 50 m, and 30 m. The top 24 archers advanced to the round of Last 16.

Round of Last 16 = Each archer shot one quarter of a FITA round, with the 36 arrows split evenly between the distances of 90 m, 70 m, 50 m, and 30 m. The top 18 archers advanced to the quarterfinal.

Quarterfinal = Each archer shot one quarter of a FITA round, with the 36 arrows split evenly between the distances of 90 m, 70 m, 50 m, and 30 m. The top 12 archers advanced to the semifinal.

Semifinal = Each archer shot one quarter of a FITA round, with the 36 arrows split evenly between the distances of 90 m, 70 m, 50 m, and 30 m. The top 8 archers advanced to the final.

Final = The top three archers in the final earned medals. Each archer shot one quarter of a FITA round, with the 36 arrows split evenly between the distances of 90 m, 70 m, 50 m, and 30 m.

¹⁵ 1989 - 1991: Ties were broken by three-arrows-shootouts at 90 meters until the tie was broken.

¹⁹ 2011 - 2013: The competition began again with a FITA round (ranking round). This was followed by seven elimination rounds, in which archers competed head-to-head in the "Olympic Round". Each match in the Olympic rounds consists of 4 ends of 3 arrows, giving a 12-arrow match shot at 70 meters on a 122 cm target face. The winner of an end gets 2 points, the loser 0 points (in case of a tie 1 point each). The match is over if an archer achieves at least 6 points. If the archers have 5 ends points each a single-arrow-shootout decides on the 6th ends point.

⁴⁰ Since 2019: The best 24 teams qualified to the knockout rounds instead of the best 16 teams.

⁴¹ Following the Court of Arbitration in Sport (CAS) ruling in the case WADA v. RUSADA the Russian team is called RAF, the abbreviation of the Russian Archery Federation.

⁴³ Since 2011: The competition began again with 72 arrows at 50 m (ranking round). This was followed by seven elimination rounds at 50 m, in which archers competed head-to-head in 15-arrow matches. In all matches, losers were eliminated and received a final rank determined by their score in that round, except for the semifinals. The losers of the semifinals competed in the bronze medal match.
