The St. George Sandstone Quarry

MAP OF THE PATHWAY TO THE QUARRY

A map of the Pathway to the Quarry is provided so that you can recognize the land-marks to follow to arrive at the Quarry Monument and the plaques that interpret aspects of the quarry.

Dixie Encampment Chapter of the Sons of Utah Pioneers

WELCOME! Walk through the Pillars and study each of the plaques at the entry. Then, follow the pathway to the monument and return the same way.

The pathway crosses the road a few yards beyond the entrance up a modest incline to some sandstone steps that get up to the Desert Tortoise Habitat. The Habitat is a restricted area, so you must remain on the path and avoid disturbing any Tortoises you may encounter.

The quarry lies at the far end of the pathway. You will approach the monument first, so take your time and study the plaque. Reflect on the exquisite view, then walk to the interpretive plaques along the quarry.

The plaques are on posts along the pathway leading toward the golf course. Walk carefully along the natural path to the first plaque. Study the picture and see if you can recognize any stones in the quarry that show stone cutter marks on them.

Move to the next plaque, study the picture, read the inscription, and look for other evidence of quarrying on the stones.

Walk to the other plaques, examine the pictures and study the inscriptions, then look for similar signs of quarrying.

Enjoy the stroll, but when you get to the final plaque, do not go any further, return to the monument and retrace your steps back along the marked pathway.

You may pass other visitors on their way to the monument, so please step aside and allow them to pass.

Walk carefully to the stairs and step down to the pathway. Watch as you approach the road and return to the Entrance.

We hope you enjoy your visit to the Quarry and share your experience with others, encouraging them to walk the pathway to the quarry also.
